SAVAGE SCENES IN NEW U.S. RIOT OUTBREAKS

MINNEAPOLIS SEETHING

THIRTY-FIVE WOUNDED IN DAY OF STRIFE

POLICE SHOOTING SEQUEL

WHILE POLICE AND THE SELF-APPOINTED "VIGILANTES" OF SAN FRANCISCO ARE STILL CARRYING OUT RAIDS ON ALLEGED COMMUNIST CELLS IN THE NOW PEACEFUL CITY, STORM AND STRIFE HAVE NOW DEVELOPED IN HALF A DOZEN OTHER CITIES IN THE UNITED STATES.

Martial law may be proclaimed in Minneapolis where police shooting aroused violent hostility of the striking lorry-drivers and provoked savage scenes that led to the despatch of hundreds of National Guardsmen to the city.

Seattle and Portland are both going through anxious times, particularly Portland, where a general strike is threatened.

Three hundred and fifty alleged Communists have been jailed in San Francisco. The prison is overflowing and many of the prisoners were compelled to sleep on the floors.

GENERAL STRIKE THREAT

Oregon Governor Incenses Workers

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received July 21, 8.55 a.m.)

Portland, Ore., July 20.
The reaction of the waterfront workers to the Governor's mobilisation of the National Guard to assist in strike-breaking tactics has been as expected.

Widespread sympathy is felt among all union workers in the port, who warmly denounce the Governor's mobilisation of troops. They have, however, decided to give Senator Wagner a chance to attempt a peaceful settlement before declaring a general strike.—United Press.

TEAR-GAS BOMBS IN SEATTLE

Dock Affray: Attack On "Blacklegs"

Seattle, July 20.
Tear-gas bombs were used in the course of a "flex" affray at the docks today, following an attack by strikers on non-unionist labourers working ships.

The strikers' attack was beaten off by the police. Twenty of the strikers were severely affected by tear gas and four of the policemen were injured.—Reuter.

The United Press states that the incident occurred round Pier 41 where freight cars were switched bringing cargo away from ships that had been unloaded by non-union workers.

As the result of fighting, three strikers and three policemen have been sent to hospital.

POLICE SHOOT IN LORRY RAID

Incident Leads To Savage Riots

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received July 21, 8.55 a.m.)

Minneapolis, July 20.
Many persons were shot down today in the development of a serious outbreak of violence in connection with the lorry-drivers' strike.

Nine, including a policeman, were wounded when a grocery wagon was being moved by the police through the so-called "blockade area." Suddenly, a lorry packed with strikers dashed along the police wagon.

The police were taken by surprise and fired over the heads of the strikers as they scrambled out of their lorry and attempted to board the police wagon and drag the driver from his seat.

The overhead shots failed to check the rush and the police lowered their aim hitting several of the attackers.

WIDESPREAD COMMOTION.
The incident caused widespread commotion and scenes of violence were witnessed at many points. Thirty-five persons are known to have been shot in the course of the rioting.

So serious has the situation become following the police shooting incident that 3,400 National Guardsmen have been rushed into the city and the Governor of the State is considering the establishment of martial law.—Reuter.

A ONE-MAN RESCUE PARTY

AMAZING N.Y. GAOL BREAK

ISLAND SCENE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received July 21, 8.55 a.m.)

New York, July 20.

A rescue party of one, a man armed with a revolver, walked into a big military prison in the heart of New York to-day, reached his objective, pulled his man out of jail and took him out of custody in a rowing boat!

The affair was not quite so simple as that, but the plan of escape seems to have been worked out with such perfection that it went as smoothly as clockwork. It was a single-handed "job" from start to finish.

The man, who was carrying an automatic pistol, forced his way into the goal at the well-known military base on Governor's Island, in New York Harbour, gaining admittance by surprising the sentry and compelling him to drop the automatic shotgun he was carrying.

SOLDIERS HELD UP.
He then held up three soldiers and two members of the Citizens Conservation Corps who appeared on the scene and marching them in front of him proceeded to the cell containing a prisoner named Private Blanton, unlocked the door and set him free.

Together they rowed away from the island in a rowing-boat and got clear away!

It is understood that Private Blanton had twice previously escaped from military camps.

HIVE OF ACTIVITY!
The fact that Governor's Island is a veritable hive of military activity in the shadow of Wall Street's skyscrapers makes the sensational gaolbreak all the more remarkable.

It is perhaps even more astounding that nothing could apparently be done to stop them after they had made their getaway from the island in a small boat.—Reuter Special.

From this point it follows the 24th Meridian East of Greenwich in a southerly direction as far as its junction with the frontier of French possessions.

Britain and Egypt renounce all claim on the part of the Sudan to territory West and North of this line and Italy renounces all claim to territory South and East of it.—British Wireless.

LOVERS STABBED IN CUBICLE

BROTHER BREAKS IN TOO LATE

MAN ARRESTED

A tragic discovery was made in a cubicle at 211 Lai-chikok Road in the early hours of this morning, when a young man and a young woman, both aged 25 years, were found stabbed to death.

They are believed to have been murdered by a former lover of the woman, and the suspect is now in a detention ward at the Kowloon Hospital.

The murdered couple are a man named Yim Chun and a woman named Keung Wai-lan, both of whom resided on the third floor of the premises.

The shocking discovery of the crime was made by a brother of the murdered man, named Yim Hui, who at about 2 o'clock this morning heard cries of "Save Life!" coming from the cubicle. On breaking down the door, he found his brother and the woman dead from stab wounds.

FOUND IN ALLEY.
Later, the alleged murderer was discovered by Sergeant Davies, of the Shamshui Police Station, lying in an alleyway at the rear of the premises with an injury to his leg. When questioned, the man stated that he had received his injury when escaping from a fire. Being taxed further, he was unable to give a satisfactory account of his movements and was accordingly taken to the Shamshui Police Station.

DRAMATIC INCIDENT.
Matters took a dramatic turn later when the brother of the dead man arrived at the Police Station to give details of his discovery of the tragedy. There he saw and immediately identified the man in custody as Keung Chi-pan, who, he said, had formerly lived with the dead woman.

The alleged murderer, who was later removed to hospital, is alleged to have made his entry into the premises by means of a rope from the roof and to have later fallen several feet when lowering himself to the ground.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Dressed in gingham, her hair flying in the wind, hurling epithets, loving like a minx, and hating like a devil, Katharine Hepburn, as Trigger Hicks, in the RKO-Radio picture, "Spitfire", comes to the King's Theatre, on Sunday, in what is said to be the most difficult role of her brilliant career. In this picturization of the Broadway stage hit, "Trigger", Miss Hepburn battles men, mobs, the Devil, and love itself, and makes you believe in her. Ralph Bellamy and Robert Young have leads, and the supporting cast includes many well-known names. The production was directed by John Cromwell.

"As Husbands Go"

Warner Baxter, topping his triumphs in "Penthouse", "Paddy", and "42nd Street", comes to-morrow to the Alhambra Theatre, in Fox Film's latest release, "As Husbands Go". The film is taken from Rachel Crothers' successful Broadway play, "Let 'Em Be Gay", and "When Ladies Meet", has again written a play that is recorded as human, real and enjoyable. The picture is described as a romance for women that men will like. It deals with the wife who is undecided whether or not she should give up a devoted husband for what at the moment appears to be a glamorous, new romance. While on a pleasure jaunt in Paris, she becomes infatuated with a young Englishman. Before departing for home she promises to divorce her husband so that she may be free to marry him. At home, her husband's charming manners and devotedness prove too much of an obstacle for her to overcome. The young Englishman's arrival makes the situation more embarrassing. Discovering that the young man is the one his wife loves, the husband proceeds to discover what type of man he is. A strong friendship is formed between the two, and the young man's admiration for the husband becomes so great that he decides to depart and leave well enough alone. The wife realizing her great mistake tries to confess to her husband, but he sympathetically suggests he understands, and refuses to let her tell, as they find a new happiness together. It is reported that Warner Baxter, in the leading role, gives an inspiring performance. Helen Vinson who was last seen in "The Power and the Glory" play opposite Baxter. Other members in the cast are Warner Oland, Catharine Doucet, G. P. Huntley, Jr., Frank O'Connor, Eleanor Lynne and Jay Ward. Hamilton MacFadden directed from the screen play by Sonya Levien.

"The Cat and the Fiddle"

Boasting a cast of stellar magnitude, telling a lyric and touching love story, and enriched by one of the most beautiful musical scores ever to reach the screen, "The Cat and the Fiddle", showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, stands out as a definite pictorial and melodious achievement. It only to hear the glorious voices of Ramon Novarro and Jeanette MacDonald audiences are certain to find the noted Broadway stage success a grand and unforgettable entertainment. With Novarro and Miss MacDonald holding stellar rank, the cast boasts such names as Frank Morgan, Charles Butterworth, Jean Hersholt, Vivienne Segal and Joseph Carthorn. Gay, mirthful and sometimes naughty, the play-within-a-play has the Bohemian flavour of continental student life. Those have heard the recording of the song numbers sung by Novarro and Miss MacDonald predict ever greater popularity for the singing stars. In their first appearance on the screen together, the song-making passages which blend their golden voices.

"Lady Killer"

Starting life as a crooks' accomplice and "finger man" for a gang of crooks may not be the ideal formula for success on the screen as a motion picture star. But Jimmy Cagney, as the hero of his latest Warner Bros. picture, "Lady Killer" which is having its final showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre does both, and keeps the spectators shrieking with laughter at his experiences, when they are holding their breath at his hair-raising escapades with the police, his ex-gangster friends and his former "noll" sweetheart. There's never a drag or a slow moment in a Cagney picture—motion picture fans know that by now, but the speed and pace of "Lady Killer" is enough to make this production easily the fastest of Cagney's recent dramas. Improving as he is with each new production, James Cagney has never done anything rarer or more sparkling than the hero of "Lady Killer." Mac Clark does excellent work as the sweetheart of his shady days, and interesting Margaret Lindsay is charming and convincing as Lois Underwood. The cast of supporting players, among them Henry O'Neill, Douglas Dumbrille, Leslie Fenton, Raymond Hatton, Russell Hopton, and Robert Elliott, all contribute authentic portraits.

"Murder in Trinidad"

"Murder in Trinidad", a Fox picture adapted from the best selling novel by John Vandecrook, a Crime Club story which attracted wide attention among murder-mystery readers, is showing at the King's Theatre. The picture is a unique Carroul swamper in Trinidad, treacherous with quicksand, infested with man-eating crocodiles and inaccessible to civilized man, provides an atmosphere that intensifies an already exciting story. The part of a detective is portrayed by Nigel Bruce, who gave so splendid a performance in "Coming Out Party", his first American picture. Douglas Walton plays the role of the young man who aids the detective, and supplies the romantic interest opposite charming Angel. Others in the cast are Victor Jory, Murray Kinnell, J. Carroll Nash, Claude King, Pat Somerset, Francis Ford, John Davidson and Noble Johnson. Louis King directed from Seton I. Miller's adaptation of the novel.

"Massacre"

Richard Barthelmess believes he has discovered real stellar talent in a little Indian maid who has an important role with him in his latest First National picture, "Massacre", which has its final showings to-day at the Alhambra. The picture is a story of the modern Indian and the conflict of his inherited savage instincts with the civilization of the whites. Barthelmess has the role of an Indian brave, but most of the Indian characters are real Redmen. When it came to selecting a player to take the part of Barthelmess' sister it was not believed that an Indian girl would be capable of undertaking the role, because of the characteristic sticism of the race. A test was made of Agnes Narcha, however, a seventeen-year-old Sioux maiden. She passed it so well that it was decided to try her out in the part. At the end of the picture Barthelmess and Director Alan Crosland were satisfied with the results. The girl had the poise of a finished actress, according to Barthelmess. Her enunciation was excellent; she had restraint and yet could express strong emotion with telling effect. Ann Duvak plays the role of Barthelmess' Indian sweetheart, while Claire Dodd has the role of a white society girl who also is in love with the young Indian. Others in the cast include Dudley Digges, Henry O'Neill, Robert Barrat, Arthur Kohl and Sidney Toler.

SOPHIE KERR'S LATEST SUCCESS IN ROMANTIC PROBLEM FICTION "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

When HOWARD JACKSON, young geology professor, comes to the small middle-western town of Marburg, JANE TERRY, the prettiest girl in town, determines to win his heart.

Howard is attracted by Jane's friend, AMY LOU, but Jane schemes to keep them apart. Then one evening Howard calls on Amy and almost immediately they fall in love.

Later that night Jane confronts Howard and accuses him of breaking her heart. When he tries to calm her she interprets his words as a declaration of love and announces their engagement.

A day later Howard is trying to explain to Amy what happened when Jane sees them together. She flies into a rage. Howard tells Jane he does not and never did want to marry her and that it is Amy he loves.

Jane leaves. Amy admits her love for Howard and agrees to marry him.

Jane flies to New York and enrolls in a secretarial school.

CHAPTER VIII

Miss Jardine had been observing Jane with speculation and disapproval. The girl stood out in the quiet school like a red flag. No one else was studying nearly so much, nor so hard. No one else had half so much personality, nor was half so rude. Jane, wrapped in her bitterness, didn't bother even to say good-morning or good-bye and used the short intervals between classes to go over her lessons with fierce intensity.

"It's probably an unhappy love affair," Miss Jardine thought shrewdly, "that's thrown her away off balance—and she's naturally conceited and too inexperienced to know how to use it to her advantage. But she's so darned smart! Well—Reproof wouldn't work. She knew that. So she asked Jane to dinner."

Jane went reluctantly, but once there Miss Jardine's small apartment impressed her. It was high with a slanting view of the Hudson from the two front windows. There was silvery grasscloth on the walls, an etching or two, a Japanese print. The furnishings were good pieces of mahogany and walnut gleamed at auction sales. To confirm the respectability there was also Mrs. Cummings who shared the apartment with Miss Jardine and was older, plainer and not so well dressed as Miss Jardine.

Mrs. Cummings went out to a concert immediately after dinner, "Anne's quite mad about Bach," said Miss Jardine, and then she settled down to her real purpose of drawing out Jane over coffee and cigarettes in the living room.

The conversation had been hard going so far. Jane had looked at everything attentively but said little and Miss Jardine wondered what was going on in her head and what would be the best approach to the advice she had meant to give. While she was hesitating Jane spoke. "How much do you pay for this apartment?" she asked.

It was so blunt and unexpected that Miss Jardine started into the equally blunt reply, "Seventy-five dollars."

"Of course there are two of you, which makes it $37.50 apiece. No, I couldn't afford it alone," went on Jane. "And I won't have anybody live with me. But maybe I can find something cheaper."

"You'd have to have an older woman with you," protested Miss Jardine. "No one will rent you an apartment alone, a young girl like you—not in a house where you would want to live."

"Oh, I think I can find something. I can take care of myself. I came here to be alone."

"But that isn't normal for a pretty young girl like you. I've been wanting to ask you just what you intend to do when you've finished our course."

Since they were talking about her Jane was interested. "I haven't decided on anything in particular but I want to do something where I needn't wait years and years to be successful."

"That rather narrows the field," remarked Miss Jardine dryly. "I don't believe, to be frank with you, that you'd take to work in a publishing house, at least not in the editorial end. I feel that if we could get you in as secretary to some important man, an executive in some specialized field, you might be invaluable."

She saw her way now and headed for the point. "Of course that sort of job needs a certain personality, discreet, graceful, very tactful, capable of handling the people who want to get at your chief and who don't want to see but doesn't want to antagonize. Then there's the need of flattering him without letting him know it and taking all his little personal worries off him."

"I don't want to be that sort of secretary. I want to be part of the business, not a nurse," said Jane.

"That's the only sort of secretary a really big man needs, someone to take care of the details of his life which he hasn't time for. He wants another pair of hands and a brain that will be as near as it's humanly possible an extension of his own hands and brain. It would rest with you as to how far you could learn his business, but don't you see how very valuable you could make yourself? And don't think it's easy. It's very, very hard and it takes an enormous lot of ability. But you could do it."

Jane was nibbling the bait. "What makes you think so?" she asked, pleased.

Miss Jardine now proceeded with a speech she had made to many other girls. "My dear child, I have endless young women coming to my school. I can always pick the exceptional, the individual girl with possibilities of leadership from the very first interview. I can see you clearly as the second in command to a powerful man with far-reaching interests, making yourself indispensable, gaining experience which you can use later if you take on ventures of your own."

The talk went on with satisfaction to both women. And when Jane left Miss Jardine's she had absorbed the lesson Miss Jardine had planned to give her and charted her aspirations in a grandiose but perfectly clear line. As soon as her course was completed she would get a position as secretary to the head of some great business. There she could see herself plainly, as beautiful, keen, discreet. She would manipulate her employer and his associates with equal ease and always to her advantage.

This evening with Miss Jardine had been well-timed, for Jane was beginning to come out of her daze of sorrow and anger and was finding the studies she had taken on in such quantity a bit burdensome. She had repelled brusquely the advances her Aunt Rosa's friends had made, and she had made no friends among her fellow students. Her wound was healing, though she would not have admitted it. Amy's note she had locked in her writing case. Now and then she looked at it to whip up her hate, to awaken her pain. She did not quite know why she had saved it, except that it might be a claim or a threat or perhaps just a reminder of an event that had turned her life.

Of Howard Jackson, Jane did not dare to think. She was still caught in her feeling for him and her delusion that he would have loved her, would have stayed with her if Amy had not interfered was fixed.

Jane's infrequent letters to her Aunt Rosa never mentioned Howard Jackson or Amy. Principally they were filled with arguments why her entire inheritance should not be turned over to her at once, which would enable her to have the apartment she wanted. Miss Rosa admired her niece's stubborn pride and she was inwardly astonished by Jane's industry. It had been much easier to explain to Marburg inquirers that Jane was taking a summer course of study in a New York school and that her engagement to Howard Jackson had been a misunderstanding than to have Jane before her eyes raging about and making a spectacle of herself with jealousy and disappointment.

Miss Rosa had continued to be friendly to Howard. She had always been fond of Amy and her affection had not been lessened by what she tersely called "the upset." Howard came in often to see her. Amy did not come very much. Amy was not at ease about Jane, though she tried to be. She missed her, even with Howard and the excitement of being engaged and planning a trousseau and a wedding.

The date for the wedding had been set for early June, at home, though Mrs. Lowe had wanted a church and Professor Lowe had said he thought the college chapel was the right place and that he'd like white satin and a veil and a flock of bridesmaids, very pretty ones.

It was strange and dreamlike to plan to live in another town, in a new way. Howard was sure of his assistant professorship and with his small personal income they would have a tiny house near the campus, and not too close to his mother's home. Mrs. Jackson herself suggested this. "I don't want to be the albatross about your necks," she wrote to Amy, "and though I won't be at home very much (for I'm planning to be myself off on a long, elegant trip to Spain as soon as the wedding's over), I'll be back in six months or so and we'll both be better pleased if we're not living in one another's pockets. I want to be, as a funny cousin of mine once said, 'more like a friend than a relative.'"

At the end of the term Howard had to go back to his position. He had stayed longer than he should in Marburg. His going left Amy with much more free time and the thought of Jane came back more insistently than ever. Passing the Terry house one day, on impulse Amy went in.

Miss Rosa was in the kitchen with Emily making mustard pickle, but she welcomed Amy cordially. "How are you, child, and how's your trousseau coming along? I've missed seeing you—but of course an engaged girl is too busy to pay many calls."

"I've missed Jane, Miss Rosa. I couldn't bear to come here with her away. How is Jane? I'd like to know."

"She seems to be all right. She's been working like fury so far as I can make out."

"I wish she'd forgive me. I suppose she won't though."

"No, I don't suppose she will. She did an awfully mean thing and it's human nature to bear a grudge against the people we've tried to injure."

"But it's so dreadful to feel that Jane hates me."

"I think she hates me too, Amy, and you and I are the people who've loved her most. I've made up my mind that Jane's got to go her own way. She's got a very good head but she's got a queer twist in her heart."

Amy turned her head aside. "I can't help thinking about her. I love Jane just the same, maybe more, because I know how unhappy she is. I feel responsible for it. Miss Rosa—hasn't Jane ever asked about me?"

"Not a word. And I haven't mentioned you to her. And I'm not going to. But I send her the Marburg Chronicle, so she knows about the parties people are giving for you, and she'll know when you get married if she wants to read it. And that reminds me, your mother says you're not going to be married in church. I'm sorry for that. You'd make a picture coming up that long aisle with a train of girls. You're going to be the prettiest bride Marburg's had for many a long day."

"After that, you'll have to come to the wedding, even if it is at home, Miss Rosa."

"That's what I was angling for, an invitation. Well—I wish I had a niece like you, my dear. I certainly do." Miss Rosa gave her a hearty kiss. "And stop your 'projecting,' as Emily says, about Jane. You can't live other people's lives for them."

Amy walked slowly out of the house and down the street. She would never, she felt, quite stop "projecting" about Jane. When she reached home she ignored the sewing table and went to the piano to conjure away in music her wish to see Jane, to be at peace with her. (To Be Continued.)

SILVER PRICES

INDEX TO WORLD TRADE CONDITION

London, July 20. A strong plea recommending the avoidance of demands for a fixed ratio between gold and silver, a fixed currency price for silver or a fixed quantity of silver in actual circulation, and demanding the reversal of several policies and acts until an adequate price for silver is reached is made by the Monetary Committee of the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners.

The Committee's plea is made in support of the case for raising the price of silver in order to assist the cotton industry.

It is stated that whenever the cotton industry or world trade recovers the price of silver will be high, and the trend of silver on the way to recovery will be upwards.

The Committee is fully alive to the fact that the first and foremost consideration is trade recovery, and the revival of purchasing power by the absorption of unemployed workers, the price of silver only being the means or index. But, it is contended, the price trends of silver have always been reliable indexes to the condition and prospects of the cotton trade, as well as all world basic industries.—Reuter.

THE STATE AND TRADE UNIONS

As in all upheavals of its kind, the San Francisco strike has again brought into prominence the question of the extent to which a State is entitled to extend its authority over trade unions. Again and again it has been shown that these unions in their activities intersect the sphere of action of Governments and not infrequently invade the field in which the State claims supreme authority. The issue is one of great practical significance, since it raises the question whether the principle of freedom of association can be reconciled with the State's claims to the allegiance of all its citizens. The evolution of British trade unionism has been in the direction of an ideal of economic democracy which is in irreconcilable conflict with the conception of State sovereignty embodied in 19th Century political ideas. Events have, indeed, modified the rigidly unitary conception of the State, and it is evident that organisations like trade unions must play a large part in the orderly development and smooth working of the economic system. Certainly in no truly democratic State or social system can trade unionism cease permanently to be a living force. The likelihood is that the unions will, as time goes on, assume new functions and responsibilities in relation to the conduct of economic affairs. As economic scarcity becomes a thing of the past and public planning replaces private capitalism in many spheres, the trade unions should be freed for the constructive functions which they can undertake in making industrial government truly democratic. To turn from these points to the issue raised in opening, whilst there cannot be any questioning of the right of employees to collective bargaining, or to withholding their labour if they see fit, a general strike falls into a different category. There may be occasions when sympathetic walk-outs are justified in the hope that recalcitrant employers may have pressure brought to bear on them by other employers, but the tendency of general strikes is to take on a political aspect and to develop into class warfare. This much at least can be said—that when the State is challenged and the necessities of life are kept from the people, a general

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE KEYNES WAY

There was probably more coincidence than causation in the quick change of policy in the Roosevelt programme which followed the visit to Washington of Mr. John Maynard Keynes, the famous British economist. It has long been known that Mr. Keynes exercised a potent influence on the New Dealers. He is reputed to have advised the President "to scrap the N.R.A. and speed up public expenditure." A day or two after, the N.R.A. began very hesitantly to turn its back on price-fixing and General Johnson has indicated a desire to give simultaneous N.R.A. policy. Simultaneously the President was giving several indications that he intends so to stop up public expenditures that budget balancing by 1936 will go aglimmering. In both respects the President is following the Keynes way, if not Mr. Keynes's specific advice.

PUBLIC SPENDING

Mr. Keynes has long been identified with the policy of public spending as an anti-depression device. Fear of a deficit has kept people like Mr. Neville Chamberlain from accepting this view. They compare a government to a private corporation, which should keep its books balanced on pain of bankruptcy. Such a likeness, however, confuses two functions. A private corporation exists to make a profit. The purpose of a government is to render service. There is no greater service required of a government than to come to the rescue when banks will not or cannot lend and business has lost its enterprise. This is what is now being done on a vast scale in the Roosevelt Administration. Statesmanship of the high order is required in the handling of such an unbalanced budget and Mr. Keynes's conceded such statesmanship to Mr. Roosevelt. He is not so happy in his other descriptions of the Roosevelt experiment. Few economists, least of all Mr. Keynes, could be found to uphold price-fixing.

SWEATING CONSUMER!

At a time when so many people are talking glibly about regimentation, it is well to remember that all manufacturers who believe in controlled prices are regimenters. For such prices are made in a manner which is the antithesis of free competition. The old tactic of restoring buying power was to cut prices till they met consumers' depleted purses. Under the New Deal a log has been put under prices so that they do not fall to a sweating labour level. But that privilege should not be allowed to degenerate into such a tampering with prices as would mean sweating the consumer. Otherwise the United States will be condemned to perpetual relief operations. Money will have to be poured out in enabling the community to maintain an unnatural price structure. What is required is the accommodation of prices to fit incomes, so that private industry may start once more to fill private instead of public orders. The need is therefore for statesmanship in industry (including labour) as well as in the Government.

BORDER LINE

Mr. Keynes feels that of all the economic experiments in the world to-day that of "young America attracts my own deepest sympathy." Because, in addition to trying to make the economic order work "tolerably well," it is trying to "preserve freedom of individual initiative and liberty of thought and criticism." There speaks Keynes the liberal. The border line that separates the Roosevelt Administration from Socialism or Fascism has become as fine as a hair. If consumers are freed under shelter of the codes, and in retaliation the Government takes over price-fixing, not in the interest of industry but in that of the community, that would mean the Corporate State. If Roosevelt stays on the fence, and does out increasing quantities of public money, he will wake up one day to find that he has socialised everything. The Administration can be kept free of both regimes only by the co-operation of all sections of the community in developing a really reconstructed individualism in the public interest. That co-operation can only be assured if it is recognised that there can be no going back. And that is the hardest job before President Roosevelt, to convince the people, particularly the industrialists that this is not a mere phase, but an established new order.

strike becomes, to use General Johnson's words, civil war. When that stage is reached, there is no other alternative for the State than to use its powers to the full in the common interest of the people.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG BULLS AND INNERS

July 13th.—Last night the typhoon signals up and I to bed in somewhat of a doubt what should come of it, and this morning I do wake to find it mightily bright and as hot and still as ever I saw it. This I confess, do trouble me somewhat, it being a Friday and the thirteenth day of the month. Yet when I am come to my office I do learn that the signals are all down, and for all that yesterday the king's ships in harbour do raise steam and secure to their buoys, the great ships Robin doth pursue her trials at sea very peacefully. At the Clubbe later I hear there are two cases of human deaths from rabies, and I perceive that general opinion doth harden against the selfish Dogge-owner. But it is allowed on all hands that some are the most reasonable possible, who do care for their dogs and restrain them; yet, as Creed says, I would forbid the keeping of Alsatian hounds save where their owners have such grounds that they can safely be enlarged. For a doggo that is much tied up is ever ready to snap. Mr. Povy comes and tells me about the sweepstakes to be held upon the race for the Picnic Bay Stakes. And I do trust that the City Watch will seek diligently to curb all carriers of Po Pu tickets or other unfair competition.

14th.—After ordering my papers betimes I do call upon one of the King's small ships that did on Wednesday pass ahead of the supposed Typhoon, and her captain tells me he could see no sign of it, the glasses remaining high and the millibar variation normal, but his discourse was of navigation, in a dialect I understand very little, so it may be I have not set down all clearly. Yet the gist was plain, that he is in some doubt where, if anywhere, the typhoon doth exist. To the Clubbe for my Mulligatany and later to the Valley where I do see one or two bowles matches. Home later and reading in the news sheets I do see that progress is made with the new site for Government House, which is to be upon the old Military Sanitarium site. And this indeed in the old days proved so full of malaria, as I am told, that it was abandoned, and later in 1912 than in 1923 as the news sheets had it. Yet as we now have our Marial Bureau I doubt not each anopheles doth know its place, though how it comes that malaria among the taipans at Shek-o I know not. Yet it comes into my mind that it will be many years before the site is a comely one, and what shall be done if another dynasty such as that of May or Celestial, doth arise, that doth love Mountain Lodge before all things, I know not. And indeed it is a most beautiful place, with tennis lawns and a small course for golf—beyond its hydrangeas, which are, as I suppose, as fine as any in the world. This evening reading in Mr. Lucy's History of the Tory Parliament from 1886 to 1892, which is to my mind of the greatest interest, showing how the Irish Party in those days did delay all business, until their leader did come out in his true colours and did sacrifice the cause of Ireland rather than his own personal position. And so it is that any true Irishman doth spit when the name of Parnell is spoken. Reading of those days now so long ago, it comes mighty strange to find Mr. Lucy, poking fun at Mr. Delahunty, whose one crusade in the House is to introduce pound notes. And so doth the wheel revolve. For Mr. Delahunty is dead and forgotten, but we live upon one pound notes, and would not readily be without them in the future.

16th. (Lord's Day).—All day in my chamber working at this and that and ordering my garments. Reading in the news sheets I do find all pretty dull, save that one writer doth use the phrase "male-wide" shoulders in referring to a certain German general, and I am sad at heart to find that there is now no adequate punishment for the offence, which doth call at least for the pillory and ear-cropping. "Male wide", for sooth! But Lord! I do suffer an indigestion after it, and cannot sleep for reflecting how sad it is that birth control had not been earlier popular before that writer did begin to insult good paper.

16th.—This day very hot, and once more I do perceive the advantages of Chinese food, if indeed for though it be so hot that at the table we do off our coats, I do eat a very bountiful nunchoon with two old friends of the Council, and yet do feel after as if I had had but a snack. And I am in some minds to make trial of this as a steady nunchoon. My papers being ordered at the office by some five of the clock, to a provisor of a dull, tiresome picture, but as I am in expectation of a heavy thunderstorm I care not very much. Yet, as it turns out, the storm passes but with a heavy shower. Very hot all day.

17th.—Up betimes and trimmed myself, but or ever I do on my garments I am sensible that the day will be mighty hot. Buy at the office all day, and later to Seventh Heaven where I do find Mistress Ann pretty well, but mighty set up over her Father's return. But for all this she forgets not her friends and I am glad of it. Later, I find from the news sheets that affairs seem mighty serious in St. Francisco. And I do doubt things shall be worse or they be better. But I do trust that the Communistic scum, as well as the honest folk, shall bear the retribution which too often they do escape. I also read that Mr. K. Don is found guilty of manslaughter but there is an appeal.

18th.—Reading early this day in the news sheets I find no further news of the strike. I see a new King's ships be named the Fame, which doth take me back these twenty years and more, when I did call upon the old Fame at Tai Po, reaching her by swimming, to be most civilly entertained by her Captain, Mr. P. Monroe, whose laugh I do even now seem to hear. Then, to my greatest possible surprise, I do find my old friend Mr. Pitt appointed to the Curcoca, which I do believe to be tender to the gunnery and torpedo schools at Pompey. But of this I am not surely informed. But of one thing I am sure and that is that Mr. Pitt will be well nigh as vexed as his mess-mates, he being, I doubt not, as optimistic as ever, and moreover, as I did hear, more set upon fishing and later upon shooting.

19th.—Up very betimes, but the day is very hot and I at a stand to remain dry even when I am doing on my garments for all my electric fan. Later it dulls over and the weather is cooler. To Repulse Bay with a merry party, and Lord! how pleasant it was to see no dogges upon the Beach. Bathed and after drank a glass of strong waters while it did thunder, at which I was troubled, being set to take supper on the Golfe Club verandah. But it chances that there is no heavy rain and all goes merrily. But among other talk I do learn that a diet of human flesh reacts very ill upon a polo-pony. Home late, and so to bed.

COSTUMES COURTESY
TEN EYCK-NEW YORK

HERE'S a washable silk frock with amusing blue nautical figures printed on a white background. It has cord facings and a large neckline bow of contrasting color. Crystal bracelet and earrings are smart with it.

THIS PERFECT summer street ensemble consists of a softly tailored dress of white silk with a rippling collar and a seven-eighths length coat of dark blue silk with a shirred waistline.

CHIFFON in a black and white polka-dot design is used to make this jacket outfit for midsummer informal luncheons and teas. The dress has a square collar that is worn outside the jacket.

THIS JACKET ensemble of blue and white plaid organdie is as cool as an ocean breeze—and flattering, as well. Both dress and matching jacket are trimmed with plain white organdie collars.

THEY'RE practical without being dull; different without being obvious; charming without being frilly these new summer frocks for street and general daytime wear. Wider necklines, washable fabrics and matching jackets distinguish them.

No nonsense in a summer wardrobe, if you please. By that we mean that you should get things that are practical as well as beautiful and which, in the final analysis, won't prove extravagant.

For instance, there is a decided vogue for pure white. And any girl with a grain of fashion sense knows full well that there's nothing quite so flattering. However, in choosing a white frock, make sure that it's washable or, if it's a very expensive model, at least cleanable.

An everyday dress that has to go to the cleaners each time after you wear it will be a pretty heavy strain on the average pocketbook, and one that shrinks or gets otherwise ruined after one trip to the cleaners is an even worse strain on the nerves. Both tragedies can be avoided if you shop diligently and make sure that you're getting what you pay for.

To get back to the subject of wider necklines, try on a few before you decide to stick to the close-fitting varieties which were so popular during the past winter and spring. You'll be cooler and, since you have an exceptionally wide choice, you're sure to find something that just suits your type of face and throat.

In the midseason Paris fashion openings, several of the leading couturiers showed lower necklines. Mainbocher cut many wide and low, both in front and back, while Schiaparelli presented many that were low and square. It was Schiaparelli who favoured pure white collars on dark printed sheers, or dark croques in monotones.

Cottons certainly are dominating the fashion picture this season. You meet them everywhere—on the street, in smart restaurants at the luncheon hour, at afternoon teas and later on at dances and other formal functions.

Accessories, as usual, are important. Look at the charming linen or pique collar, cuffs, bag and glove sets that are being shown in smart shops. Wide-brimmed hats of the same fabrics are pleasing.

DRESSY but simple, this black crepe de chine afternoon tea dress with braided white pique ornaments is perfect for the mature figure. A large bracelet and earrings of crystal are worn with it.

STUDENDOUS SIBERIAN PROJECTS

VAST POWER PLANTS

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS

BAIKAL, Siberia.—If Soviet engineers are right, and nothing upsets their plans, titanic forces now in play in and about this region will change the whole face of the Far East.

In front of the railway station here rise mountains rivaling the Alps. Behind spreads Lake Baikal and the source of the Angara river, said to be the most limpid in the world.

Fully harnessed, Russians claim, this stream will cultivate a series of power stations surpassing Niagara Falls, Muscle Shoals, Wilson and Boulder Dams combined.

Lake Baikal is 380 miles long. It is from 20 to 45 miles wide. In places it is a mile deep. It is now frozen over. I saw a regiment of troops manoeuvring on its solid expanse.

Trains have crossed on tracks laid along its stone-like surface. And this, it seems to a layman, might interfere with power development, at least in winter.

MIGHTY POWER.

However, the Angara is Baikal's only outlet. And, being high in the mountains, Baikal's waters, racing hundreds of miles down this stream to where it drops into the mighty Yenisei, will yield more "white coal," it is said, than any other known river.

Russian engineers, some of whom were associated with Col. Hugh L. Cooper, American consultant for the world-famous Dnieprostroi, south Russia, claim the Angara will develop 44 times the power of that project. And Dnieprostroi is second only to Niagara Falls.

Full expansion of the Dnieprostroi plant will give 765,000 horsepower, or 535,000 kilowatts with an annual output of energy totalling 2,800,000,000 kilowatt hours.

Full utilization of the natural reservoir of Lake Baikal, it is claimed, would yield more than 30,000,000 horsepower, or better than 22,000,000 kilowatts, with an annual output of energy surpassing 120 billion kilowatt hours.

MATERIAL FOR EMPIRE.

To the man in the street these figures mean little. But what all this electric energy and horsepower would mean to Siberia's industrialization project can be easily understood.

Here, in an area bigger than the United States east of the Mississippi, Soviet geologists assert, are stupendous reserves of iron, coal, copper, silver, lead, and raw materials of all kinds—all that it takes to convert Russia's former penal colony into one of the world's most pulsating empires.

In the heart of it lies Baikal, about half way between east and west, waiting to give this region almost unlimited electric power.

New railway lines are not only being surveyed, but some of them are under construction. The Trans-Siberian, sole transcontinental railway, is far from sufficient.

A new one, to be called the Great Northern, will run from Archangel, on the White Sea, to somewhere near Rukhlovo, on the Trans-Siberian, where that line reaches the peak of the salient north of Manchuria.

WILL ELECTRIFY RAILWAYS.

Another line under construction will run from around Tomsk to the Pacific port of Okhotsk. Both this and the Great Northern will pass north of Lake Baikal, where, for some hundreds of miles, they likely will use the same tracks.

The Great Northern, it is said, will shorten the time between Moscow and Vladivostok about two days. Most of these lines will be electrified, according to Soviet plans.

In addition, Soviet engineers have conceived a hard-surface highway through this region, from the easternmost tip of Chukotki peninsula, right under the Arctic Circle, to European Russia.

An American motorist could get in his car and step on it all the way from Maine to Moscow—or, for that matter, to Berlin, Paris, and Madrid—with only one sea voyage of 36 miles across Behring Strait.

This, it is needless to say, will hardly be ready for the reader's 1934 vacation.

CHALLENGE TO JAPAN.

Unless the Soviet Union's vast colonization and Siberian industrialization scheme falls through, a total area larger than the entire United States will be converted into a whole series of Garys, Pittsburgs, Niagaras, Falls, Muscle Shoals, and Boulder Dams.

This means that for the first time in history a colossal European power would entrench itself along the whole northern frontier of China and Manchuria and rub elbows with the Japanese.

The significance of this cannot be exaggerated. Up to now neither China nor Japan has had a western power for a neighbour. Siberia, nominally Russian, has gone almost undeveloped and uninhabited by white men, save for the felons in exile.

Even the number of these has been grossly magnified in the public mind. From 1825 to 1905 less than a million were sentenced to prison camps there.

CHANGE FACE OF ASIA.

What effect the transformation of Siberia will have on the Chinese, and what Japan will do to meet the challenge, is already being asked in world chancelleries. But Tokio has given more than a hint as to her policy. It is, bluntly, "hands off China."

In the event "a third power threatens our position there," a foreign office spokesman said in Tokio, "we shall intervene."

And to Japan any power which lends itself to the conversion of China into a unified, strong nation thereby becomes a threat to be dealt with accordingly.

GAS MASKS SOLD RETAIL

"Now, just put this one on, Monsieur. . . . There! Perfect! Monsieur is just the type for this gas-mask. . . . It's what every well dressed man will be wearing in the next war."

BY MORRIS GILBERT.

What price protection from gas warfare?

The answer in Brussels is $1.16 in Belgian francs, over the counter, retail.

Every man his own life-saver is the idea of the little shop in one of this capital's principal streets, where a display of gas-masks for private use almost crowds out the shop's principal purpose—selling fireworks.

The masks on sale are not highly specialized. They are "flight-masks" rather than resistance-masks, the salesgirl points out. Supposed to protect the buyer from four different varieties of known military gases, they make no pretence of halting the fumes of newer, deadlier gases which a new war is likely to produce. Also they don't pretend to keep a purchaser in comfort during use. If you can make a quick get-away from the scene of a gas-attack, wearing one of these crude and expensive contrivances, you will have got your money's worth. So declines the man who makes them.

The inventor is a Belgian military man, Colonel Stevelinck. "Everybody knows that any chemical plant whatsoever can be turned in a few hours into a factory for poison gas," he writes in a pamphlet distributed with his masks. "No surveillance, no control, can stop this state of affairs. There is much resistance to overcome to teach the public the dangers of gas warfare. Certain Utopians object that war is impossible. That is their right—as it is their right to let themselves be assassinated without defending themselves. For them, I can't do anything."

"Others, taking their wishes for facts, pretend that gas attacks won't take place in the next war since all peoples called civilized have condemned gas warfare as too barbarous. . . ."

HISTORY SUPPORTS HIM.

The colonel goes on to argue that history shows that all war is an eternal development of possible arms. When the English defeated the French at Crecy in the year 1346, he reminds his readers, the French nobility was tremendously shocked and disgusted because the English used cannon, which was against the rules of civilized warfare. It was argued, besides being unsportsmanlike. But, a little later, the French used cannon, too.

So he argues that gas warfare, with novel inventions and terrors, will certainly be part of the next combat, and hence it would be just as well to be prepared.

LAST SCENE ON WATERLOO BRIDGE

SUNRISE, THEN BARRIERS

THE POLICEMAN'S GOOD-BYE

London, June 23.

As the distant clocks of London were striking six yesterday morning, two men, simply clad in blue dungarees, stopped across the South side of Waterloo Bridge and with elaborate carelessness placed end to end two scaffold poles across the entrance.

An approaching pony cart drew up sharply at the barrier, and, after excited plans by three Press photographers, was allowed by authority to pass; a small group of unemployed cheered lustily (to order); and the two B.B.C. engineers, squatting behind a single microphone, recorded for posterity the sound of the last vehicle crossing Waterloo Bridge.

Seventeen minutes later, as the last barrier was erected on the other side, one man crossed to the northern end of the structure—and so became the last foot passenger to leave Waterloo Bridge as it is today; the last pedestrian to cross the River at this point for at least five years.

Thus the curtain has fallen upon a great London memorial, and it will not rise again. For better or worse, Waterloo Bridge as London has known it is dead.

SUNRISE.

A few hours before this rather unsatisfying ceremony, in company with a London police constable and an unemployed steeplejack, I had watched for the last time the sunrise as it may be seen from the footway of the bridge.

Imperceptibly, magnificently, the dawn had crept over London from the east, until the dark stonework on which we stood grew lighter and its outline was reflected in fantastic shapes upon the sluggish waters of the River Thames. The bridge lamplighter passed for the last time down the footway, extinguishing the gas lights.

The policeman and the steeplejack, it must be confessed, were unmoved; the policeman, because he said frankly that he had watched the same spectacle many times before; the steeplejack, because he regarded a new bridge as a source of employment for many years to come.

MARKET CARTS.

Yet it was an impressive finale. The hand of man was mercifully absent.—We watched in silence.

At half-past three the "regulars," as the policeman called them, who have driven over the bridge every day on their way to Covent Garden and elsewhere, began to go by. The relentless policeman thought it worth saying goodbye to them.

Here and there small groups of unemployed, with hope in their eyes and despair in their hearts, gathered beneath the shelter of the wooden awning on the western side to avoid the cold wind that swept across the River. A dozen times, Waterloo Bridge was pulled down, rebuilt, enlarged, improved—miraculous undertakings that would provide perpetual employment.

In friendly fashion they exchanged views with the policeman about the whole matter. The steeplejack put forward his own proposals.

By 4.30 a.m. the B.B.C. engineers had arrived, and their efforts to record (unaccompanied) the sounds of two horses and a dray, a pony cart, a milk van, "the last bus," and the Royal Mail provided a welcome diversion.

MICROPHONE TROUBLES.

It was unfortunate that the conspicuous microphone encouraged passing van drivers to provide vocal accompaniments of their own. Despite frantic signals from the man in charge, several perfect renderings of vehicles crossing Waterloo Bridge were ruined by the cheerful comments of passers-by. Loud guffaws, raucous cries of "Watch out, Charlie," and "Make me a star," had, unhappily, to be censured.

By six o'clock a crowd of perhaps 20 persons, which so far as one could see held not one single sentimentalist, had gathered at the southern end of the bridge.

The end, already described, was not long delayed, because by then it was nearly breakfast time.

The policeman observed, "It's a good job done." The steeplejack hurried off to seek his job.

mailed men indirectly affected by the general strike, returned to work to-day.

The situation is generally much easier and there was no violence to-day.

The merchants have re-stocked their shelves and have re-arranged their windows in preparation for a business boom.

The mediaters are, in the meantime, concentrating on securing a settlement of the teamsters' strike. They are still supporting the longshoremen and their strike is the real crux of the present situation.

LONGSHOREMEN RESTLESS.

It is felt certain that if the teamsters go back, the longshoremen may kick out their militant leaders and vote to arbitrate before they are completely defeated, which result would mean the permanent loss of their jobs.

The general strike in the East Bay district ended this morning. The key route ferries and trains between San Francisco and East Bay are operating normally.—United Press.

BRITISH PLANE FOR "SMITH"

LAST MINUTE RACE DECISION

"Australia's gesture of goodwill towards Britain's attempt to establish supremacy in the air."

With these words, the Lord Mayor of Melbourne officially announced Sir Charles Kingsford Smith's last minute decision to fly a British instead of a foreign plane in the Centenary Air Race.

The machine will be a $5,000 "Comet", one of the six mystery planes specially built for the race by the de Havilland Company, and an anonymous backer has guaranteed the purchase. The plane is capable of more than 200 miles per hour and Sir Charles hopes to complete the race in less than 3½ days. With his co-pilot, Captain P. G. Taylor, he intends flying day and night stopping only for re-fuelling.

In explaining the sudden change of plans, Sir Charles had already announced his decision to fly an American plane—the aviator told Austral News:—

"In spite of my earnest desire to secure a British machine, I was forced to the conclusion that England did not produce commercial machines with high speed and long range comparable with those of America.

"While producing the finest fighting aircraft and luxurious passenger machines in the world, England has not concentrated on building fast long-distance planes, because the demand for such planes does not exist in Europe as in America.

When the de Havilland company announced that it would build a long-range machine with a guaranteed speed of 200 miles an hour, specially for the race, my attitude changed.

After exhaustive inquiries I have decided that this British product will compare favourably with anything that can be entered by any other nation."

Sir Charles has flown over the Australian-England route seven times.

ENGLAND-AUSTRALIA AIRWAY

Elaborate Precautions Over The Sea

Elaborate precautions will be taken to safeguard passengers on the Brisbane-Singapore section of the air route to England, particularly over the Timor Sea. The route will be operated at the end of this year by Imperial Airways in conjunction with Qantas Empire Airways.

The managing director of Qantas, (Mr. Hudson Fysh) told Austral News that the DH86 air 'planes are designed to carry 10 passengers in addition to the crew, but owing to the weight of the mails, accommodation would be restricted to the eight passengers and a crew of two. During the crossing of the Timor Sea, a maximum of five passengers would be carried. The passage across the Timor would be further safeguarded by the presence of a patrol of 12 knots. This would be equipped with wireless and would be in constant communication with the aeroplanes. Each machine making the crossing would carry a rubber lifeboat capable of accommodating eight people. The aeroplanes would be equipped with two-way wireless.

Although the timetable had not been definitely decided upon, said Mr. Fysh, it was anticipated that the journey from Brisbane to Singapore would occupy five days.

LEGAL BATTLE

ARNOLD BENNETT'S WILL CONTESTED

London, July 20.

Great interest is being evinced in a London legal battle, which opened at the Chancery Division this morning, over testamentary rights to benefits accruing from the copyrights of the famous novelist Arnold Bennett.

The action has been brought by Bennett's wife, a Frenchwoman, from whom he was legally separated for a number of years before his death, and the action is defended by Dorothy Cheston Bennett, a deed of separation from his wife, Marguerite, in 1921, leaving approximately two thirds of his estate to her.

He subsequently lived with Dorothy Cheston, who later took the additional name of Bennett, and who presented him with a daughter. Bennett's will, dated October 16, 1925, gave Dorothy Cheston all his possessions except those assigned under covenant to Marguerite.

Sir William Jowitt, appearing for Marguerite, argued that man was not entitled, during his lifetime, to dispose, to a third party, of his possessions with the object of frustrating an earlier covenant.

The novelist's estate shortly after his death was proved in the neighbourhood of £40,000.—Our Own Correspondent.

JAPAN QUOTAS

MEASURE REJECTED BY CEYLON MINISTERS

Colombo, July 20.

The Board of Ministers has declined to introduce the anti-Japanese quota system, because, they maintain, it would raise the cost of clothing for the poorer inhabitants.

The Board has informed the Governor that if Sir Philip Ounifilister, Secretary for the Colonies, insists on the quotas, he must take the responsibility of using his powers to carry the legislation.—Reuter.

London Not Surprised.

News of the Ceylon Board's reluctance to enforce the anti-Japanese quota system has not surprised Government circles in London, as recent indications foreshadowed such a development.

It is at present too early to say what steps the Government will take to deal with the situation, but Reuter understands that the Governor of Ceylon could, if necessary, assume power to enforce the quota.—Reuter.

WARWICK'S ASTONISHING WIN AGAINST YORKSHIRE

STRANGE THINGS HAPPEN IN FOURTH TEST AT LEEDS

STRANGE things happened on the Leeds county cricket ground yesterday. Bluntly speaking 23 wickets fell in the course of a few hours cricket for 239 runs, on an easy-paced wicket. But that doesn't explain things.

THERE must have been some sort of "devil" in that pitch. Although it is possible to accept the collapse of the English team resulting from "rabbit" batting, the hypothesis becomes less reasonable when the fall of three good Australian wickets for 39 runs is also taken into account.

Everything tends to suggest that the wicket became increasingly difficult as the day wore on. At one time Walters, Keeton and Hammond were hitting boundaries as though these were the only legal runs to be scored. Nearly a run a minute was being maintained until shortly before lunch.

IT was from 3 o'clock onwards that bowlers really got on top, and it remained that way until the close.

ON the face of it, Australia are slightly in the better position. True they have lost Brown, Woodfull and Oldfield, the first two being among the main Australian batsmen, and are still 121 behind England, but with Ponsford still in, McCabe, Bradman, Chipperfield and others to bat, indications are that the visitors will gain a useful first innings advantage.

ENGLAND'S final team is something of a surprise. The selectors left only one fast bowler in, introducing Keeton and Hopwood for Sutcliffe and Allen, and preferring T. B. Mitchell for Nichols.

IT is possible that this offers a clue as to the conditions, and it may be that rain and a soft wicket is expected at any time. Certainly England have an array of spin bowlers.

YESTERDAY'S play offers an interesting contrast. Whereas it was Australia's slow bowlers, Grimmett and O'Reilly, who did most of the damage during England's innings, it was Bowes, the speed merchant, who upset the Aussies.

ACCORDING to the cables, Australia batted with a "steadiness and certainty which looked ominous for England, until Bowes claimed his sensational bowling successes ten minutes from the close."

DURING that important period, Bowes clean bowled Brown and Woodfull and had Oldfield caught. He must have found a spot.

ONE is inclined, in fact, to feel that there is something patchy about the wicket. Grimmett and O'Reilly obviously had the last seven English batsmen summated, and must have been pitching on "spots."

NEVERTHELESS Reuter makes no suggestion of a really bad wicket, so that one is forced to believe that the majority of the English batsmen played very uninspiringly.

THE figures relating to the play from the fall of the third English wicket, speak volumes. Seven home batsmen were dismissed for an additional 66, and taking Australia's occupation of the crease into account, we find that then wickets fell for a total of 104 runs.

FROM this distance it defies explanation.

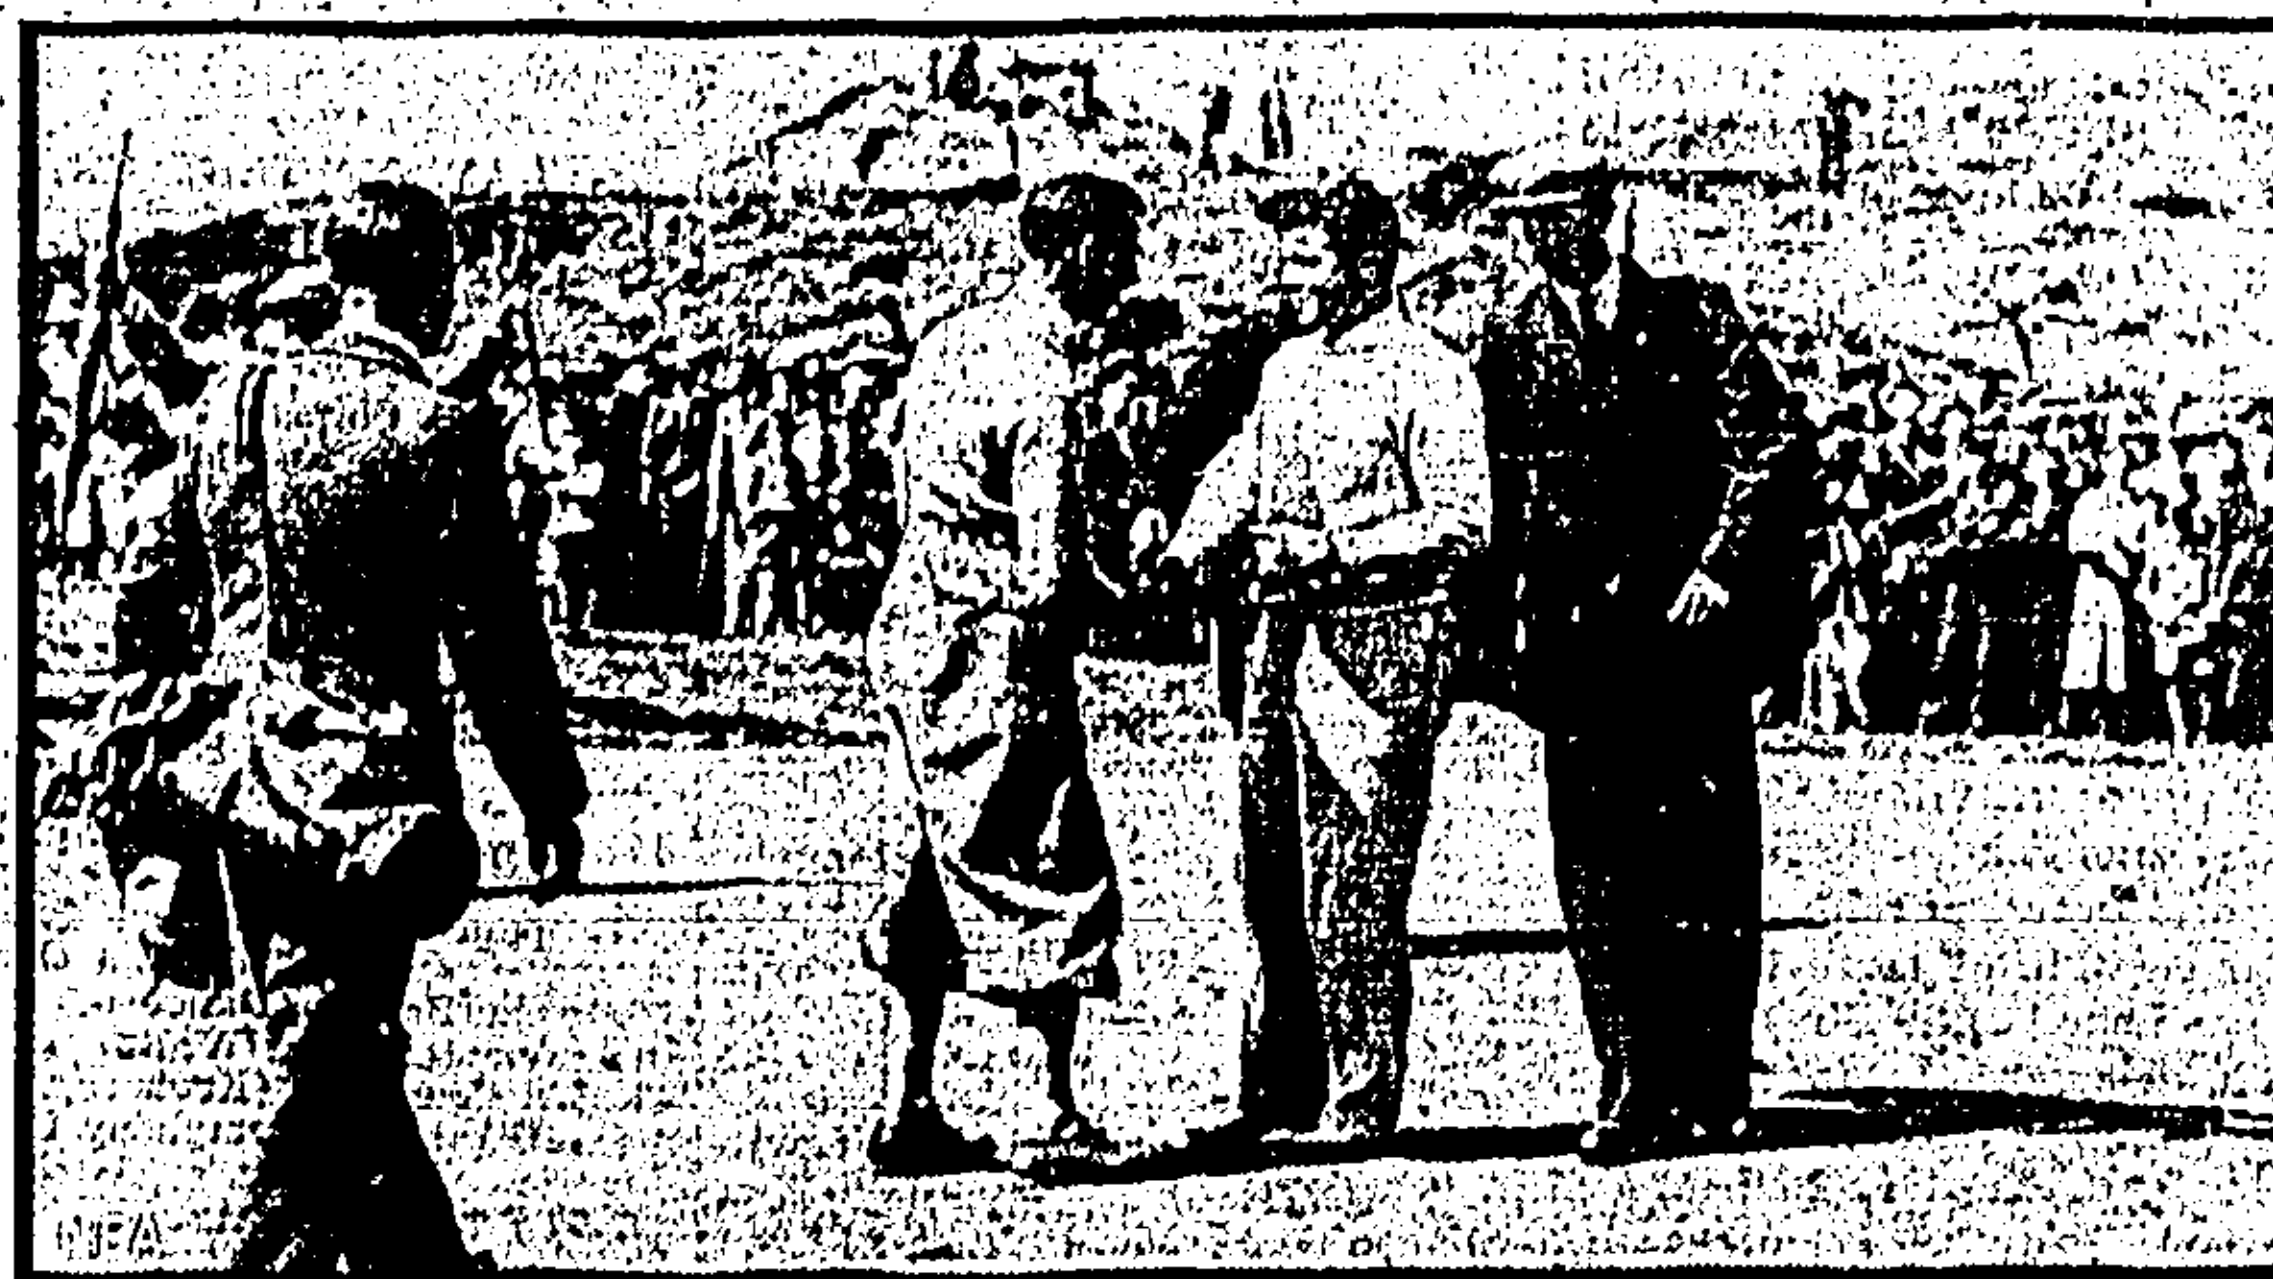

CHIEF batting honours of the day went to C. F. Walters, whose 44 was a mixture of rare aggressiveness and rooted defence. Hammond and Hendren appeared to bat somewhat carelessly, germinating the false belief that they could become absolute masters of the attack at any given moment.

AFTER their dismissal, the English batsmen were scraping about like chicken in a run. It was unimaginative batting.

OLDFIELD'S wicket-keeping was, as always, masterly. He claimed four victims, two stumped and two caught, and the extras column shows only a couple of runs given away.

AMES returned the compliment of being caught by his opposite number, when he held a snick by Oldfield off Bowes. The old maxim should be altered to, "not a wicket-keeper to catch a wicket-keeper."

TODAY'S play is bound to be intensely exciting. One thing now appears certain. Unless rain comes to huck out large hunks of play, the fourth Test should carry with it a definite result.

"I feel like I might shoot some pretty good golf to-day," Lawson Little, 23-year-old Stanford University junior, said as he entered the British Amateur gold championship final at Prestwick, Scotland. And he did. Sinking 15 and 20 foot putts, the young American captured the match and title without losing a single hole in the final round, winning by the record margin of 14 and 13. In this picture Little, the third American in 30 years to win the title, is shown (right) being congratulated by his vanquished opponent, James Wallace, an unemployed Scotch carpenter.

Cutting Out Marathon Tennis

SUGGESTED TIME LIMIT

London. The prevalence of marathon tennis in the French championships at Auteuil this year has been much deplored by French critics because it tends merely to exhaust the players and does not give a true test of worth.

Rene Lacoste wonders whether some modification in the size of the ball might not lead to shorter rallies. It was hoped that the present regulation ball would have this effect, but if recent results are any criterion the reverse is the case, for it seems to encourage players to make it behave like a pendulum.

"Why not have it on elastics?" asked one critic, watching M. Slem playing against Jack Crawford.

It is pointed out by Armand Massard, the famous amateur French fencer, that in football, boxing, cycling and golf the contests are limited either by time or distance. In lawn tennis the only limit is the number of sets. The games may run to any number, and so may the points.

Why not a time limit for five set matches? he asks.

This suggestion finds favour with Andre Gobert, the former French Davis Cup player. He writes: "The French Lawn Tennis Federation, which is directed by men with plenty of common sense, would do well to listen to the wise advice of M. Massard, whom I consider is perfectly right."

DEATH OF "OLD EBOR"

LEADING CRICKET COMMENTATOR

COLLAPSES ON WAY TO TEST

English cricket has lost a great personality through the death, which occurred recently, of Mr. A. W. Pullin, who, under the name of "Old Ebor", was one of the leading critics and commentators on the game. For several years, "Old Ebor" wrote for the Sunday Observer, his final contribution to that paper being reproduced in yesterday's Telegraph.

At the time of his death, Mr. Pullin was on his way to Lord's to describe the second day's play in the Second Test. He was taken ill, removed to the Royal Free Hospital, and died there.

RUGBY ENTHUSIAST.

In addition to his eminence as a writer on cricket, Mr. Pullin was keenly interested in Rugby football, and went through the troublous times which resulted in the splitting of the organisation of the game into two separate bodies, the Rugby Union and the Rugby League.

As a writer on cricket he was fortunate in accompanying the Yorkshire team as a "permanent non-playing member"—to use Lord Hawke's phrase—during the most inspiring period of the country's achievements. It was these years that brought out the test match qualities of the Hon. Stanley Jackson, that developed the greatness of Hirst and Rhodes, and saw the rise to fame of the record breakers, Tunncliffe and Brown, and their successors, Holmes and Sutcliffe.

Mr. Pullin had to write of Yorkshire's attack against such batting as that of W. G. Grace, "Ranji," and C. B. Fry, and had to tell how Yorkshire faced the devastating bowling of Tom Richardson and Kortright. Of those days he wrote with a keenness of judgment, a descriptive style, and a fund of anecdote that made the games live again.

IN "WISDEN."

His knowledge of the game was profound, and though he himself never played cricket other than on the village green, he lived to see his name included among the cricket immortals in the pages of "Wisden."

In addition to his newspaper work, Mr. Pullin published several books—"Talks with Old Yorkshire Cricketers," "Old English Cricketers," "Alfred Shaw, Cricketer," and the official "History of Yorkshire Cricket 1903-23." In a foreword to the last book, Lord Hawke wrote: "His criticisms form an invaluable guide to the captain, his enthusiasm is contagious, but he never allows his judgment to become unbalanced, whilst his eloquent writings on cricket have gone to every part of the world in which there are lovers of the game. I feel bound to say to the esteemed author of this book 'Well done, thou faithful friend!'"

Mr. Pullin, who was born in 1860, the son of the late Rev. A. T. Pullin, Rector of Fintona, Monmouthshire, started journalism in Bradford, and later his work for the Yorkshire Post and the Yorkshire Evening Post earned for him a wide reputation.

He leaves a widow and three sons.

Monday's Badminton Match

SHAREBROKERS' FIRST GAME

While the thermometer this week has been trying to establish local records, the Hongkong Sharebrokers' Association badminton team have been putting in serious practice for their forthcoming match with the K.C.C., on the latter's court on Monday night.

Last Monday, the sharebrokers had a good work out on the K.C.C. court, and showed promise of being a useful team.

Enjoying the assistance of Choy, the Jockey Club player, and H. Nissim, who has experience of match play, the Sharebrokers should give a good account of themselves on Monday.

The K.C.C. are not underrating their opponents, and are turning out a sound combination.

The teams will be: Sharebrokers—W. H. and W. C. Choy, H. Nissim and M. Weall, P. Silva and C. Basto.

K.C.C.—C. Wigg and A. Simmonds, P. White and F. A. Broadbridge, H. Kew and D. S. Green.

600 YARDS RECORD NOT BROKEN

Official Recognition Of New Time Withheld

London. The 600-yard world record of 1 minute 10.4/10ths secs. set up by D. G. A. Lowe, former winner of the Olympic 800-meters title, has not been officially broken after all. Because he was running with a favouring wind, the American Ben Eastman's time of 1 minute 8.8/10ths secs. for the 600-yards is not likely to receive official recognition.

Eastman, a former Stanford University runner, made his spectacular run during the annual "parent-teachers" Association meeting at San Francisco.

Switzerland—J. S. Landolt, E. Gaiser, E. Kern and C. S. Rosset (skip).

The draw has been made for the semi-final matches of the Pairs Championship, which are to be decided on Monday and Tuesday July 30 and 31. The draw resulted as follows: (Continued on Page 8.)

The Yankees were checked in the American League, being nosed out by Chicago Red Sox. St. Louis again beat the Senators, Boston White Sox lost to Cleveland Indians, and the Athletics nosed out Detroit.

Nevertheless there appeared small chance of Warwick being able to force a win in view of the earlier dominance of attack, and their fighting cricket provided one of the tit-bits of the county cricket season to date.

GLoucester CHECKED.

Other results were fairly well in accordance. Gloucester received a slight check to their recent run of successes, being laid down to first innings points by Dorsetshire. A useful knock of 117 by Dacre, the former New Zealand player, lifted Gloucester to score 337 against Derby's initial score of 224.

Kent garnered easy points from Northants, Frank Woolley again showing great form to score 176. Fagg was very unlucky missing his century by one run. After these run getters, came Freeman, who in Northants first knock took 6 for 84, and in the second 8 for 103.

Sussex had to be content with first innings points from Notts in a big scoring match. Notts first compiled 308, and Sussex replied with 429 for 7 declared. Notts easily played out time, hitting up 298 for 6. Centuries in this match were made by John Langridge (148) and Taylor, of Notts (107).

DISMISSED FOR 45

Then Stage Big Recovery

LATEST COUNTY CRICKET

London, July 20. With a result worthy of the keenest village green game of cricket, Yorkshire and Warwick completed to-day one of the most remarkable matches of the county cricket season. Warwick, after suffering the ignominy of being dismissed for 45, finally won the match by one wicket.

To achieve this they staged a very fine second innings recovery on a badly affected wicket. Called upon to score 216 to win, they obtained the runs, in an atmosphere of the greatest excitement, and with only one wicket standing between victory and defeat.

In terms of figures, the match went as follows. Yorkshire batted first, but against Paine could make no headway, and were dismissed for 101, Paine taking 8 for 62 in an inspired spell of bowling.

But bigger shocks were to follow. Tied up in knots by Hargreaves, who captured 4 for 19, Warwick found themselves sent back for 45, leaving York-

"LET'S ADJOURN"

MAGISTRATE COMPLAINS OF EXCESSIVE HEAT

"I must be satisfied that he is an expert, otherwise I am not going to take his evidence," remarked Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, in referring to a witness called by the prosecution.

The case was one in which a motor bus conductor, Lam Kwok, employed by the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, was charged with uttering a forged Kowloon Motor Bus Company's ten cent ticket on June 22. It was alleged that the defendant handed a forged ticket to a passenger on receipt of ten cents.

Mr. W. M. Brown appeared for the prosecution on behalf of the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, while Mr. M. A. da Silva represented the defendant.

The first witness called was Li
Hop-ping, who described himself as a canvasser of the Wah Nam
Printing Factory of 422-480
Lockhart Road. He said he had been in the printing business for over ten years, and was in charge of sales.

Questioned by his Worship, witness said he had never been working on the printing machines, but he knew something about them.

His Worship: Is he an expert?

Mr. Brown: He is an expert, your Worship.

His Worship: He hates to say so.

After remarking that it would be waste of time listening to the witness unless he was an expert, his Worship asked the witness to stand down from the box.

Mr. Brown then suggested that Mr. William Lovey, the manager of the Kowloon Motor Bus Company, would be able to say which of the tickets produced in Court were genuine and which were forgeries.

"As far as I can see—" began
Mr. Lovey.

"Then you are not sure?" interrupted Mr. Wynne-Jones.

"I am sure, your Worship," witness replied.

Witness then said that of the seven tickets produced in Court, one was a forgery, whilst the other six were genuine.

His Worship interrupted at this stage. "An awful thought has just struck me that this one ticket may be genuine and the other six forgeries," he said.

"I am sorry, your Worship," said
Mr. Brown. "The first witness told me that he was an expert, and that's why I called him."

"You have to call somebody who can assure me which tickets are forged and which are genuine."

"I will, your Worship. Meanwhile, if you will hear other evidence."

"Let's adjourn for one week.
It's awfully hot this afternoon," said his Worship.

His Worship ordered that exhibits of genuine and forged tickets be produced at the next hearing.

Mr. Silva: I would like to apply for a reduction of bail, your Wor-

THE TELEPHONE IN THE HOME

What a boon and blessing the Telephone can be to the home. In a minute you can be in communication with your husband at office, your children at school, your friends, the provisions store, and be assured on whatever the matter that has been troubling you.

The conveniences of a Telephone in the home can be yours for the small sum of $9.75 per month, if you are living within the City limits of Hong Kong or within the Old Boundary of Kowloon. Proportionally higher if outside these limits.

QUICK ACTION with SAFETY is the KEYNOTE of 'ASPRO'

WHEN Headaches — Pain — High Temperatures, and numerous conditions of ill-health appear you want RELIEF, and Quick Relief, to get back to normal. This is where the use of 'ASPRO' is so valuable. It acts quickly and safely. Quickly because you get rapid relief—Safely because it is pure and conforms to the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' relieves the numerous complaints listed below, because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic and anti-fermentative. Always keep 'ASPRO' in the Home ready for emergency. 'ASPRO' DOES NOT HARM THE HEART.

'ASPRO' for Headaches and Neuritis

167 Union Street,
Erskineville, N.S.W.

Sirs,
I am an obstetric nurse, and my profession takes me on numerous journeys, which mean long hours in all kinds of weather, and at times I have felt that I could not carry on but thanks to the wonderful 'ASPRO' Tablets—which I am never without—I have had instant relief from Headaches and Neuritis.

I have nursed four generations, and have always advised my patients to try 'ASPRO' Tablets for complaints too numerous to mention, and all have been loud in their praise for the wonders which 'ASPRO' has done for them.

You may use this testimony in any way you wish, for I am very grateful for the relief which I had from 'ASPRO'.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) MRS. E. L. DEK.

Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO' a Surprise

1 Garden Street,
Middle Brighton, S.S.
15/12/32

Dear Sirs,
Last week I had 18 teeth out, and not being well my nerves were in a terrible way; in fact, I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and eyes, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'. I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now, if I feel a slight headache at all I fly to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more facts where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Once tried, always used.

Yours faithfully,

VETERAN POLITICIAN.

U.S. SENATOR ON VISIT TO FAR EAST

Senator Carl Hayden, veteran member of the United States Senate, passed through the Colony yesterday by the C. P. S. liner Empress of Japan bound for Manila. He is accompanied by his wife, and is paying an official visit to the Philippines.

Senator Hayden has been commissioned by the United States Administration to investigate conditions in the Philippines, particularly with reference to the arrangements made there for the Commonwealth Government, which is a prelude to the complete independence of the Islands. He will spend some time in the south, and will submit his report to a special Senate Committee at Washington.

A Democrat, Senator Hayden has represented Arizona, his native State, in the United States Senate since 1912. After receiving his early education at the Normal School of Arizona, Tempe, he attended Leyland Stanford University, California, where he studied political science. Later, he went into State politics and was a member of the Tempe Town Council, Treasurer of the Maricopa County, and Sheriff of Maricopa County successively. A keen volunteer of the State Militia, Senator Hayden reached the rank of Major of the United States Expeditionary Forces in 1918.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.

The apparently worthless hand held by West, to-day, is called a Yarborough. But the fact that you have all low cards lets you know that some of the outstanding high cards are in your partner's hand, and as a result the declarer may be able to get a squeeze or an end play on him, unless you do your best to protect him by proper discards.

Rubber bridge—All vul
Opening lead: ♠ 8

Pre-emptive bidders would like to open South's hand with a bid of four or five diamonds. However, the better players have discontinued pre-emptive bids, as they usually shut out no one but your partner. Therefore, I believe South's proper declaration is to pass. North has two defensive tricks and two major suits—so he is justified in opening the bidding third hand.

With a bid and re-bid by his partner, we might say that South was justified in jumping to six diamonds. However, the safer declaration would be five diamonds, and, if partner had any additional strength, let him take the contract to six.

The Play

West opens the eight of hearts, and East wins with the queen. East shifts to the king of clubs. South plays the four, and now the West player, who was discouraged because he had picked up a Yarborough, might carelessly play the deuce of clubs on this trick.

However, the proper play is to discard the six of clubs, as it may be valuable to you later to show your partner that you hold the nine. North wins with the ace, leads a small heart, and ruffs with the three of diamonds.

South now lays down six straight diamond tricks. West follows with one diamond and then discards two hearts, and three spades. The dummy retains the ace, ten and seven of spades and the jack of hearts. East follows with four diamonds, and then discards the ten and jack of clubs. Remember that East, earlier in the hand, led the king of clubs, showing the queen.

Now, when declarer plays the four of diamonds, West drops the deuce of clubs, thereby completing an echo in clubs. The jack of hearts is discarded from dummy.

You might say that East's natural discard is the ace of hearts, but if East throws the ace of hearts, South will now lead the seven of clubs, throw East in with the queen, and East will be forced to lead away from his king-jack of spades, giving declarer the last two tricks to go down only one.

But with West echoing in clubs, East should now discard his queen of clubs. Now the declarer's contract will be defeated two tricks, because all he can cash is the ace

SAMOS ISLAND
INCIDENTFUNERAL SERVICE HELD

London, July 20.
The incident off the Turkish coast, in which an officer of H.M.S. Devonshire was last Saturday afternoon killed by rifle fire from Turkish guards, has been amicably settled between the two Governments.

Arrangements were made with the Turkish Government, who had already expressed their regret at the incident, for a joint funeral service, which was held to-day at the spot at which the death occurred.

H.M.S. Devonshire, H.M.S. London and H.M.S. Queen Elizabeth were present, and the Turkish Government detailed a Turkish destroyer to be present and to associate herself with the ceremony.

The Turkish destroyer cast a wreath into the sea, with an inscription expressing the sympathy and regret of the Turkish Navy.—British Wireless.

RABIES OUTBREAK
IN CANTONSHAMEEN TAKING PRECAUTIONS

(Our Own Correspondent).

Shameen, July 20.
Owing to a serious outbreak of rabies in Canton City, the Shameen Municipal Council is issuing the following notification:

Residents in general, and dog owners in particular, are hereby informed that owing to the prevalence of rabies in the City, the Council intend to enforce strictly all existing Regulation with regard to dogs in Shameen, and the police have been directed to see that these are carried out.

The principal Regulations are as follows:—
(1) By-Law 31. The importation of dogs into the Concession without special permission in writing from the Council is strictly prohibited, under a penalty not exceeding $100 and not less than $25 for every such offence.

(2) By-Law 33. No dogs are allowed on the Concession without collars or unattended.

(3) By-Law 34. "Chows," Akitans and dogs of kindred breed are not allowed on the Concession and may not be registered.

(4) The metal badge issued with the dog licence must always be attached on the collar and worn by the dog.

(5) Dogs must not be taken into the City, under penalty of forfeiture of licence.

With regard to (6), dogs may not be taken outside the limits of Shameen. In the event of any breach of this Regulation, the animal shall not be allowed to be brought in again without special permission in writing in accordance with (a).

Dog-owners are further advised that should their dogs show any symptoms of rabies, or be regarded with suspicion, they must immediately inform the Council so that a muzzling order may come into effect without delay.

Should a case of rabies be found on Shameen, the Council reserve the right to have every dog found on the streets without an effective muzzle destroyed immediately.

The Council feel sure they will have the support of all Residents in the measures they are taking for the protection of the public, and earnestly request their sympathetic co-operation.

ANGLO-DUTCH
TRADEMODUS. OPERANDI REACHED

London, July 20.
As it has not been found possible at present to conclude a full commercial agreement between the United Kingdom and Netherlands Governments, negotiations have been terminated by the exchange of notes issued to-night.

These notes place the commercial intercourse between the two countries on a fair footing and amount to the definite establishment of the United Kingdom's claim to receive its full share of all quotas, without giving additional compensation. In return, the United Kingdom accords the same treatment to the Netherlands, as it has always done.

The remaining clauses deal with technical points designed to simplify the operation of quotas as between the two countries. It is also provided that from August 1, 1934, each Government resumes its liberty of action as regards Customs duties on imported goods without prejudice to the provisions of treaties and agreements already in force between them.

It is moreover provided that the delegations which conducted the recent discussions will remain in being, and it is hoped they may open up possibilities for increasing trade between the two countries.—British Wireless.
